Listening in Poppies

listening as I speak as I hear a sound, listening I remember to a sound of an image as I reach for the center freckles of shaping - of the wind - of what is becoming or scales of what scarlet first maybe only a stain that breaks off a-flowering breath from my listening before ever-ready a thought comes to a pause before its own self-reflection - to fall out with the recognition of itself as a form, a shadow, the illusion previous to any language of substance a nub in yarn-

Poppies I remember I'm already holding onto with fear (of this new thick soup of chaos) freckles of the wind and expectation again in readiness or scales to jump on to the next vibration of a red-flowering breath of sound or dazzling ever-ready light, poppies I feel swell in small fibrous protrusions, the illusion opening with substance from the first gesture across the space- A simple vocabulary each carrying a potential of movement to chip off something read through like a swirling spark of their frail mouths an utterance (I'm still only groping, grasping, held open to this crawling in the dark a ripple at a threshold a ripple of layered opacities in the shadows now humming to myself)- Yet it is not lifting me quite enough to hear up in order to tame, to get emplaced there, maybe not even at the point when within the radiant blush I try to move by sticking to where of satin petals I am moment by moment aglow yes now aglow now wrapped into vocabulary of movement this spindle-shaped bundle that is read beginning to weave a nucleus through their frail fabric mouths of sound imagined - mouths of satin petals - a heavy new hearing held open to a ripple a thought in the shadows, thought of Poppies spoken outward, across the boundaries a voice

suspended in silence of time a moment of depth with speed releasing resonance a skin-
drum that begins to spin red circles pulled taut, a space where Being in front of my eyes nears its bare surface stretched quivers

about wordlessness

the experience mute of every sensation going off yet shimmering, sealed beneath my own silent self spread with their bloom the way a whale-wave is projected to match, sustain the desire over the plateau of an ocean and density of this space opening first then falling back to intensify all or wax the sense of the Self, both in isolation and connectedness to the Other the way to the image a reassurance of sweet unripe seed that I - a voice echoed - continue to exist that survived absorption of in somewhere Other than I the voice the voice transcending a horizon of everything that I would take to be

“maki...”
as is or just so, a cell

this here is efflorescence hardened from the sun’s chemistry alive now and under its influence the distinction between the intention and the display of appearances dissolves somehow so able to show, unshow all its loveparts all being one event leaving a centrifugal awareness of speaking, a stem along which chromosounds migrate as I lay there, warming myself in this fire, myself a thread between solutions super-saturated Language to the opposite ends of a figure surfacing: “że maki”

“są, że maki”

“są maki, że”

pre-language, pre-objects for crystals not quite what, to grow around, yet what they may or almost are interpenetrating, branching out, multi-stratal “.........maki są tak.......” sensations now enfolded, twice fastened to the sound in self, within running patterns becoming a succession of Myselves, eating away at becoming, sounding the gum bleeding somewhere between the envelopes of a twofold cloak through everything that spans over the direct me together with sound the feeling, experiencing me dotted sewn through the time-continuum, swarming on to the face of the real now becoming, now language becoming me as speaking is as is identity made own traced in various voicings a flower that swallows the pleasure of surrendering unpredictable but already involved in a metamorphism from the unknown to familiar, being in//out birthed image events encrypted in word events being in, the second figure prefigured in the first encrypted in what/ being out “I am a memory coin, flipped”: word-image, flipped: it-me, being, and at every stage both expressing both the pleasure of watery pulsation being birthed from color heard birthed as much as furthering of the sense recollected then transferred “poppies I remember” as my individual signing of being “freckles of the wind” onto the fabric of this, this language, the immanence of sense “a simple vocabulary of movement” roaming off in the arborescence of meaning myself psychedelic elided between “their frail shadows” the folds articulated from there on-

dorota czerner - 2012